The Cincinnati Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals has given area rescue groups $1,000 to help them as they rescue and find care for 60 cats left abandoned in an East End home in early May.

The home has been foreclosed on and the small humane groups have been trying to find money, suitable foster homes and care for the cats and kittens. Forty-five cats have been brought to safety so far in temporary holding areas such as garages, basements, foster homes and veterinary hospitals.
